A two-party system is a party system where two major political parties dominate the government. One of the two parties typically holds a majority in the legislature and is usually referred to as the majority or governing party while the other is the minority or opposition party. Around the world, the term has different senses. This list does not include political organizations that do not run candidates for office but otherwise function similarly to third parties. For non-electoral political "parties", see here. Largest (voter registration over 100,000) Libertarian Party – libertarianism, laissez-faire, pro-civil liberties, anti-war; Green Party – Green politics, socialism, anti-capitalism, progressivism, pro ... Completely agree with this. The idea that Donald Trump's views are "something new" in American politics is a-historical. Trump-style bigotry and xeno-phobia is nothing new for the Republicans (nor, for that matter, for certain segments of the Democrats at certain times; e.g., Dixie-crats, q.v.). What is new is something that many seem to have missed. Does reputation matter more in Malaysia than in the U.S. (or in other advanced economies)? ... Chapter 4.
